Psalm 23-While Other Shepherds Fleece the Flock

Poetic Meter: Common Meter Double

While other shepherds fleece the flock or leave it, lost, to die, Good Shepherd God, through every shock, we can on you rely.
In grassy fields we’ll safely graze and drink from flowing streams, protected by your watchful gaze from snares and crooked schemes.

No lamb shall be devoured as prey at noonday or by night, for you conduct us, come what may,
in pathways good and right.
Through valleys dangerous and dark your sheep have safely trod, directed by your sheepdog’s bark and by your gentle rod.

Your table calls, from far and near the greatest and the least.
Our enemies may watch and jeer but we shall freely feast.
Enjoying every mortal breath, we’ll dwell in your Shalom, till at the moment of our death your mercy calls us home.
